Manufacturers scrap 800 fizzy drinks before sugar tax kicks in

Levels of sugar found in soft drinks have fallen by 51 per cent, figures also show, following a clampdown by major firms to take back their money if it is not returned.

Levels of sugar in soft drinks have fallen by 51 per cent, figures also show, following a clampdown by major firms to take back their money if it is not returned.

Levels of sugar found in soft drinks have fallen by 51 per cent, figures also show, following a clampdown by major firms to take back their money if it is not returned.

Levels of sugar found in soft drinks have fallen by 51 per cent, figures also show, following a clampdown by major firms to take back their money if it is not returned.

Levels of sugar found in soft drinks have fallen by 51 per cent, figures also show, following a clampdown by major firms to take back their money if it is not returned.

Levels of sugar found in soft drinks have fallen by 51 per cent, figures also show, following a clampdown by major firms to take back their money if it is not returned.